

When preparing for a jewelry appraisal appointment, it's important to gather all relevant information and items to ensure an accurate assessment of your jewelry's value. Here is a checklist of what you should bring to your appointment:

- Jewelry Items:
The jewelry pieces you want to have appraised. This includes rings, necklaces, bracelets, earrings, watches, etc.
- Documentation:
Any existing documentation you have related to the jewelry, such as certificates of authenticity, previous appraisals, receipts, or invoices.
Please note that if you have a certificate of authenticity, it is necessary to identify designer jewelry items and identification numbers on watches.
- Gemstone Certificates and or Grading Reports:
If your jewelry contains gemstones (e.g., diamonds, emeralds, sapphires), provide any certificates or reports you have for these stones, such as GIA certificates.
- Appraisal Purpose:
Be clear about the purpose of the appraisal, whether it's for insurance coverage, resale, estate planning, or curiosity. The appraiser may tailor the appraisal to your specific needs.
- Personal Information:
Your contact information if the items are being appraised for your purposes. If the items are being appraised for someone else or for an estate, please have the necessary contact information available.
- Your Questions:
Prepare any questions or concerns you have about your jewelry to discuss with the appraiser during the appointment.

While it is not necessary to have all or any of the above documents, the more information you provide, the more accurate your appraisal will be. If you have questions, please email us at info@integritygems.com. We look forward to seeing you!
